

PICTURE STORIES

Look at a magazine and find a picture which appeals to you. Without reading about the picture, make up a story about what you see in the picture and what it means for you.

The image shows a blank, open magazine spread. The left page is mostly white with a slight shadow. The right page is divided into three rectangular boxes by thin black lines. The top left box is light gray, the top right box is white, and the bottom box is a larger light gray rectangle. These boxes are intended for the user to draw or write their story.
